

INTER-AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR GLOBAL CHANGE RESEARCH

Ref: IAIUYDIR/2024/08

8 April 2024

NOTIFICATION

Subject: Launch of self-managed, open, and free course with certificate "El Niño in the Americas: Protecting health and promoting resilience"

Dear Madam/Sir,

I am pleased to announce the recent launch of the self-managed, open, and free course, available in both English and Spanish, with the certificate "El Niño in the Americas: Protecting health and promoting resilience".

The content of this course is designed to provide knowledge and necessary tools to regional, national, and local health system planners, emergency planners and response personnel, public health officials, healthcare professionals, the meteorological sector, and others to prepare for health impacts at the local and regional levels.

The course was organized in collaboration with the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO), the United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction (UNDRR), the World Meteorological Organization (WMO), and the Global Consortium on Climate and Health Education (GCHE). Modules can be completed independently. Participants who complete all modules will receive a certificate for 24 hours of dedication.

Registration is available at <https://moodle.iai.int/>

Inquiries can be sent to communication@dir.iai.int

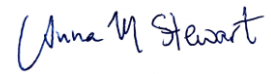

Discover all the courses available on our virtual campus:

- Climate Change, Migration and Health in Latin America and the Caribbean
- Scientific communication for researchers and social actors
- Climate and Environment Response for Health in the Americas

You are encouraged to widely disseminate this information among government officials, researchers, and other interested stakeholders.

Please accept, Madam/Sir, the assurances of my highest consideration.

Yours sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Anna M Stewart". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large initial 'A'.

Anna Stewart Ibarra
Executive Director