

MARIA VIRGINIA VILARIÑO
Argentinean Business Council for Sustainable Development
Argentina

Degree in Environmental Sciences, with Specialization in Policies and Instruments of Environmental Management and Project Assessment.

Energy & Climate Manager at Argentinean Business Council for Sustainable Development since 2004, leading and managing climate change projects and programs oriented to the business sector in Argentina, addressing carbon management, energy efficiency and climate adaptation. Responsible for public-private partnerships and stakeholders engagement. Member of initiatives and projects at World Business Council for Sustainable Development, such as Access to Energy, Measuring Socio-economic Impact and Climate Smart Agriculture. Member of Technical Advisory Committee of Argentina's National Communication to the UNFCCC and business sector representative at the National Climate Change Cabinet.

Lead Author of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) Fifth Assessment Report on Climate Change Mitigation. Member of IPCC experts groups on New Integrated Scenarios of Climate Change, on Human Settlements and Infrastructure and for the Special Report on the Impacts of Global Warming of 1.5°C above Pre-Industrial Levels.

Member of the Stakeholder Advisory Group and Official Trainer for the GHG Protocol, by World Resources Institute and WBCSD. Expert Member of International Organization for Standardization (ISO) Working Group on GHG management in the value chain. Member of the international core group of policymakers and private sector representatives at Practitioners' Dialogue on Climate Investments.