

VALENTIN D. PICASSO RISSO
University of Wisconsin-Madison
USA

Valentin Picasso is an Agronomist from Uruguay, with a PhD in Sustainable Agriculture from Iowa State University. He is a professor at University of Wisconsin Madison (USA) and Universidad de la Republica (Uruguay). His research interests include agroecology and sustainable agriculture, climate change mitigation and adaptation in livestock systems, resilience, perennial dual purpose crops for forage and grain, ecological intensification of forage and grazing systems, and international agriculture. He has been involved in many inter and transdisciplinary projects including adaptation to climate change of agricultural systems in Uruguay, sustainability of bioenergy across the Americas, science-policy interface in agricultural droughts.