

PABLO YAX LÓPEZ

Private Institute on Climate Change Research (ICC)

Guatemala

My name is Pablo Yax López. I'm Guatemalan and Mayan Indigenous, speak my native language K'iche'. I have a master degree in Planning and Management of Land, Risks, Water and Environment, with a multi-cultural and gender approach by San Carlos of Guatemala University. Since 2011 until date I work in ICC as Capacity Building Program Coordinator, the main activities are training of key stakeholders (teachers, leader's communities, GOs, NGOs, among others) and communicating climate change researches and projects in the region. In 2013 I was Project Development of a mechanism of technology transfer of adaptation to climate change of maize and bean crops in the Pacific slopes of Guatemala Coordinator (small grant of USAID); direct beneficiaries were mainly farmers of maize and bean crops.
