

IAI Directorate's Internship Program

Purpose

The objective of the internship program is to provide a framework through which under- graduate, graduate and postgraduate students from diverse academic backgrounds may be assigned to the Inter-American Institute for Global Change Research (IAI) Directorate where their educational experience can be enhanced through practical work assignments. It allows selected candidates to gain insight into the work of the IAI and provides assistance and training in various relevant professional fields.

The IAI Directorate's internship program is coordinated by the office of the Executive Director. At the end of an internship period, a written evaluation of the intern's performance is prepared by the staff member acting as his/her supervisor and a meeting is organized to provide the intern with constructive feedback.

Students from a range of disciplines are able to apply, and depending on qualifications, are selected for internships that relate either to the Directorate's core activities or to technical functions, including its scientific or capacity building units. Internships afford interns the opportunity to work in a multi-cultural international organization.
